

Ana M. Dorador, Staff Accountant

Ana M. Dorador brings with her to OFWF considerable entrepreneurial expertise, as the owner of two businesses, as well as a lifetime of volunteer service. Born in the central Mexican state of San Luis Potosí, Ana earned her bachelor's degree in accounting and finance from the local Universidad Autonoma de San Luis Potosí. She refined her finance expertise as an analyst in her native Mexico.

After moving to Omaha in 2013, Ana would demonstrate her bilingual capabilities by successfully completing the TOEFEL (Test of English as a Foreign Language) at UNO. A year later, she graduated with distinction as an Entrepreneurship Generalist at Metropolitan Community College. She would return to accounting by enrolling in the accounting and business/management program at Nebraska Wesleyan University. In 2021, she graduated with a Master of Business Administration degree from NWU.

While a departure from her previous positions in the finance area, Ana is enjoying the change of pace provided by her public accounting role at OFWF. Processing income taxes are a source of fascination for the mother of two. And, when she's not busy at the office, Ana may be found traveling with her family. Ana and her husband of 25 years are the proud parents of two daughters; the eldest is a Ph.D. candidate in Biological and Biomedical Sciences at Harvard, while the "baby" of the family is pursuing a Master of Architecture degree. Ana can also be found on the golf course, on her bike, cooking away, or further refining her skills in taxes and accounting with continuing education.

Near and dear to her heart, Ana has continued to volunteer her time in nursing homes and senior communities in the U.S, just as she did in Mexico.
